Nine arrested July 3

Bond reduced to $10,000 for alleged 'neo-Nazis'

BELLE GLADE—The lawyer for an accused white supremacist and neo-Nazi argued that even though his client "might have offensive views" that is no reason to deny him bond.

Attorney Michael Stauder argued in behalf of his client David Christopher Dixon, 24, a correctional officer at Glades Correctional Institution.

He and eight members of a group called White Patriots Fort were arrested July 3. They were charged with planning attacks on blacks. The group allegedly followed through with their plans in several instances and are accused of firing shots into a local restaurant.

Bond for seven of the men was originally set at $50,000. That amount was reduced to $10,000, with stipulations, at a bond reduction hearing last week.

Assistant State Attorney Rick Barlow argued before County Judge Don Adams that the suspects pose a threat to the community. He wanted pre-trial detention.

He cited the existence of a conspiracy to commit violence. He said there were photographs, video tapes and confiscated magazines which show the intentions of the group.

Stauder, along with other defense lawyers, argued that bond should be reduced to personal recognizance. He noted that the only reason for bond is to make certain a person will show up in court for trial.

Stauder told the court his client had never been arrested before. He said there were family members and others in court to testify in his behalf.

Barlow argued that video tapes of the group's activities would show the court the suspects are a threat to the community.

Stauder used this argument to his advantage, saying that showing the tapes "would only serve to prejudice the court against unpopular views."

He noted that a person's views have nothing to do with the amount of bond set for him. He noted that members of the Communist Party are given bonds, even though their views are not compatible with mainstream America.

The arrests of the neo-Nazis by Belle Glade police followed a six-week investigation. Participating in the investigation were the Palm Beach County Sheriff's Office and GCI.

Police say the group had attacked a black man in Belle Glade. They also report the group had been involved in other acts of violence.

According to police, the acts were committed solely because the victims are black.

At last week's bond reduction hearing lawyers argued that their clients were not a threat to the community.

In response to Barlow's argument, Judge Adams said, "You'll need a strong showing to convince me these people are not entitled to bond."

Adams asked the lawyers to get together and come up with a compromise. He told them he was thinking of a bond "in the $15,000 range."

The lawyers agreed $10,000 would be a fair bond. As part of the deal the suspects must meet several conditions.

They are not to associate with each other or continued on 2

Women circulate petition, strive to upgrade Belle Glade image

BY GENE ANTONIO

BELLE GLADE—Everyone in this city has seen the TV reports and the newspaper stories depicting Belle Glade in a negative light.

And probably people here have thought to themselves that their city is getting a bum rap. They may have said: "That someone should stand up for Belle Glade."

Two women who share those feelings have decided something must be done to help the public get a true picture of this city.

Virginia Smook and Kay McCormick say they're fed up with seeing news reports showing only the bad side of Belle Glade.

To fight what they see as an injustice they've taken up the cause of Belle Glade. Last week the two women started circulating a petition among city residents.

The two have gotten about 80 signatures so far. They say this is just the beginning. Smook says, "We love Belle Glade and I'm not giving up."

The women have determined. They drew up the petition and spend their days walking the streets of Belle Glade asking for support.

In almost all cases they get it. People, they say, are willing to sign their petition which calls for fairness in reports about this city.

The petition draws attention to reports of AIDS, photographs of the run-down areas of town and other "exaggerations bordering on discrimination."

Smook, who has lived here for two years, says she is proud to live in Belle Glade and she wants people to see the good side of the city.

She says she became angry when friends from other parts of the country came for impressions of Belle Glade from news reports.

She recalls an incident in a grocery store in which a customer moved back from a woman when she learned she was from Belle Glade.

Both women blame the media for giving the public a false impression of the city. They say it is all too easy to come here and point cameras at the worst parts of town.

They also resent the implications regarding AIDS in Belle Glade. They say here too the media is unjustly singling out Belle Glade.

The two plan to take their petition to area television stations. They also plan to send a copy to the governor.

Although not sure what the effect of their campaign will be, the two young women are adamant in their feelings about this city.

They say, "We love Belle Glade and we're not giving up."

THESE TWO WOMEN are tired of the bad press Belle Glade is receiving. Last week they began circulating a petition in the city which they intend to present to the governor and area TV stations. The two Belle Glade boosters are Virginia Smook, left, and Kay McCormick.

Belle Glade commission nixes proposed alcohol beverage store

BY GENE ANTONIO

BELLE GLADE—An ordinance which would have put an alcoholic beverage store on the corner of Main Street and Avenue C went down the drain.

The City Commission voted down the ordinance allowing the city to give its okay to the store which would have permitted on-premises consumption.

Tom Bonavia tried to convince the commissioners and audience members at Tuesday's meeting that the liquor store could be an asset to the community.

He said there would be a number of economic advantages. He also said the addition of a modern liquor store would "make the block more attractive."

But the commissioners didn't buy the argument. Mayor Thomas Altman objected to the stipulation in the ordinance that there be on-premises sales. The proposed ordinance allows for the sale of daquiris and draft beer. Technically these are not classed the same as drinks sold in a lounge.

Altman said he could not support an ordinance which would allow open alcohol in a vehicle.

Referring to state statutes, he said, "We'd be passing an ordinance which would allow people to break the law."

Bonavia pointed out convenience stores allow the sale of beer to motorists who are around the same thing."

The mayor commented that it is unlikely a person would lock a frozen daquiri in his truck until he got home as he might with a case of beer.

Others at the meeting opposed the ordinance. William Blackwell, master of the Masonic Lodge, located in the lot next to the proposed site, argued problems would arise with people coming out of a liquor store.

He noted that Rainbow Girls might be harassed by customers at the proposed store.

He said, "We're not against stopping a business, but we don't want people staggering around the corner."

Also speaking against the proposed building was an Eastern Star member and mother of a Rainbow Girl.

She told the commissioners she "would not feel comfortable" letting her daughter go to the Lodge if a liquor store were next to it.

She also said elderly Eastern Star members

City can't move dilapidated trailer

BELLE GLADE—Although the mobile home located at 740 SW Avenue C is "unfit for human habitation," the city cannot remove it because of legal restraints.

City commissioners were told this week that the Code Enforcement Board has requested authorization to take legal action to remove the dilapidated trailer.

The Board calls the trailer a "health hazard and safety hazard to the neighborhood."

But saying the unoccupied trailer should be removed and removing it are two different matters.

City Attorney John Baker told the commissioners the city would need a court order to remove the trailer.

He said the city "cannot take action without the lienholder." The lienholder is the manufacturer of the trailer.

All other parties have agreed to have the trailer removed. Both the property owner and lot owner have given approval to the removal.

But Baker cautioned the city. He said, "We dare not touch it without a court order."

Mayor Thomas Altman believes the situation can be handled without court action. He instructed the city manager to try to get the release from the lienholder.

Action was postponed until the next meeting.

Commissioner Daniel Bythwood, however, is concerned that the trailer is a health hazard.

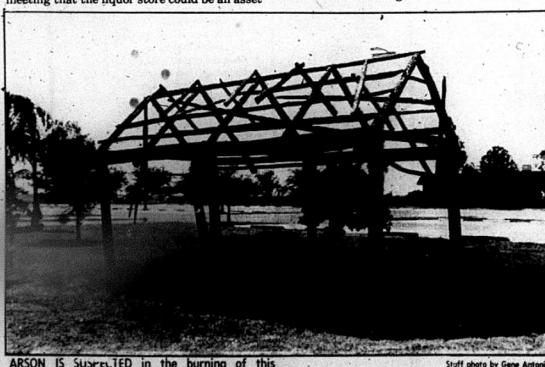

He said that although the trailer had been secured it is now open again.

He said, "I've been in this building. It's a complete health hazard. If you look inside there you'll get sick."

Commissioner Claude Tindall suggested whether the city could get back its expenses for moving the trailer.

The city attorney said the only thing which could be done would be a lien against the property owner. He noted, though, that the property owner is being cooperative.

The mayor said, "I think we can work this whole thing out, maybe with just a phone call."

Commission debates fairness of giving money back to developers

BELLE GLADE—City commissioners Tuesday debated the fairness of returning money to developers who pay to extend sewer lines.

Again Mayor Thomas Altman called the present policy "unfair and inequitable."

Tuesday wasn't the first time the mayor called for changes in laws covering fees for extensions of sewer and water line.

For some time he has argued that the policy of having the first developer pay the entire fee is a disincentive to be the first person to develop."

But two city commissioners do not see it that way.

Commissioners George Goforth and Charles Goodlett voted against a request from the developers of Lake Breeze Mobile Home Park for reimbursement of half of the $35,280 spent for sewer line extensions.

Goforth said, "The time to talk about this was before the work was done."

Goforth said, "I don't feel comfortable voting for this."

He said that since the development is outside of the city therefore the city should not pay for any part of the work.

City Manager W.E. Strang pointed out that a precedent was set at Crosby Mobile Home Park, also out of city limits.

Goforth said, "We're providing a service halfway to Pahokee. He (the developer) knew the cost before he started."

He added, "I have to know a lot more before I reconsider. There's no way I can vote for this."

The mayor argued, "The purpose of development fees is to pay, in part, sewer and water connections. If a developer must pay for a long extension it is a disincentive to be first."

The mayor pointed out that "a ballpark figure" for development fees from this project would be "over 90,000."

He said, "Guys, it's unfair. We have to amend the code rather than take these case by case."

The developer's letter stated that "a large amount of land...has been opened for possible development."

Strang said, "For half the $35,280 the developer pointed out that 'any future developer in that area will not incur such costs.'

The request was granted, with Goforth and Goodlett voting no.

In other business, the commissioners took the following action:

—Agreed to go ahead with plans to hire the engineering consulting firm Airport One from Tampa to make a study of the airport required for FAA funding.

—Agreed to go along with the marina committee's request to purchase a tractor and mower to cut grass on the banks of campsites. Specifications have been drawn up and several demonstrators have been considered.

—Approved a bid for work to install 90 Double Site Electrical Installation to D&D of Belle Glade at $1,510. There were four bidders.

—Awarded a contract for 93 double electrical RV junction boxes to Major Electric of Belle Glade. The bid was $6,107. There were four other bids.

—Agreed that nine city streets will be resurfaced. The city has $95,000 to spend on the paving. Last year they spent $93,000. If there is enough money an additional three streets will be paved.

—Learned the city golf course will be closed Tuesdays until July 24.

—Received an announcement from Environmental Regulations that the city has received a grant of $121,000 for repair of the trunk sewer behind the water plant on Avenue D. This is 49 percent of the estimated cost.

—Approved a resolution for a special use exception for Royal's property.

—Heard the final reading of an ordinance providing local implementation of a water shortage plan.

Adams, in setting the bond, said, "If there is the slightest concern on anyone's part this bond will be revoked."

Those arrested July 3 are GCI Correction Officers John C. Hunter, 20, of 9126 NE 28 Street and David Dixon, 24, of the Bachelor Officers Quarters.

Eddie Boren, 31, of 425 S. Main Street and Loren Jay Boren, 20, of the same address, Timothy Loden Kelly, 18, of 14392 NW

Avenue F Place and Carl Dean Jr., 28, of 218 NE First Street.

Police also arrested a 16-year-old juvenile.

Later in the week two additional group members gave themselves up to police.

Gary Thomas Baker, 20, and Franklin Eugene Fullwood Jr., 22, both of 1033 NE 26th Street surrendered to police Wednesday.

The nine men were charged with criminal conspiracy to commit aggravated battery.

The men belong to a group with headquarters in North Carolina. Its purpose is to unite, organize and educate white people and to work for the rights and for the survival of the white race.

The group uses the same salute as used by the Nazi Party in the United States. The group uses the Confederate flag and the song Dixie in its rituals.

would stop coming to meetings if a liquor store were down.

She also noted, "Parents will be hesitant to let their daughters come to Rainbow."

Mayor Altman tried to come to a compromise but failed. Bonavia said without the sale of liquor his client probably would give up on the idea of building a liquor store.

Audience members seemed to be against any type of business which sells alcoholic beverages of any kind.

The mayor noted that he himself in the past had done the same type of business he was voting against at that time.

He said, "I have a different awareness and sensitivity to alcohol today just as society as a whole does."

He did say that the lot in question probably would soon be developed with some type of business. Without being specific, the mayor said there are businesses "much worse" than a liquor store which could move into the lot.

The ordinance was defeated with a unanimous vote.

Out of step with history

In the Glades, as in the rest of this great and diverse country, it is possible for radical, fringe groups to emerge.

This week, Belle Glade Police Officers arrested seven members of a neo-Nazi, white supremacist group that most of us never had heard of or knew existed.

The seven were charged with criminal conspiracy for attacks on two black men in Belle Glade and one in West Palm Beach. Other incidents included throwing grapefruits, slashing tires, and shooting out windows of occupied businesses with firearms.

The men, two of whom were corrections officers at Glades Correctional Institute, reportedly drove past unsuspecting pedestrians and then hit them with a spike-tipped ax handle.

We have historically been blessed with good relations between the races locally. All citizens can recognize members of the White Patriots Party, and other screwball organizations, for exactly what they are.

Their goals are offensive, immoral, irrational, and out of step with history.

Forty-four years ago, this country went to war to wipe the threat of Nazism in Europe.

Nazism and neo-Nazism today remains as unacceptable as it has ever been.

Enough said.

Strive to imitate the Lord, follow his example in life

Most of us have had at one time or another someone to whom we looked up. Today the golfers pick out Curtis Strange or Jack Nicklaus; the football players Joe Montana or the ministers Billy Graham or Robert Shuler, and so on.

The Apostle Paul says "Be imitators of God, as beloved children." As children of God we seem both logical and practical, but untenable. (It is impossible without help.)

America's first leader, Cleopatra of Alexander, said "A wise man always follows after God." If you want to be a good speaker you study under the master speakers or study their style. We are however in training for life and we must set ourselves to imitate the Lord.

We do this by acting the way God acts. God is holy, therefore we are to keep ourselves pure. We have put away the evil nature from our beings.

We are to forgive as God forgives us and provides for the sense of forgiveness. The love of Christ makes forgiveness possible and gives us many examples. "I do not say to you seven times, but seventy times seven." "Father, forgive them for they do not know what they do."

We are to obey God. Look at Jesus who turned His head toward Jerusalem and was obedient even to the cross. Our lives have been given a purpose and a new lease over and over again by Christ's obedience. To take full advantage of this we must obey the commands of love given by God in Christ.

Paul also says "Walk in love." This means accept others even though we may not like the way they do things. It means to act in a thoughtful way.

Dr. David T. Evans

Everglades Presbyterian Church

This means eliminating the worst of habits: gossip. Idle words can cause more trouble than we can ever imagine. It is like trying to pick up a pillow of feathers after a days wind.

Walking in love means living in appreciation of what God has done for us in Jesus Christ. His love when accepted and made ours is an underlying principle for every action.

Walking in love also means living so that others may see Christ in our actions. Just as example we can help people to find strength to walk in love. Love can be contagious and undergird countless lives.

Walking in love can be making love the very atmosphere of our lives. Sometimes when the presence of a truly saintly person we can feel a magnetism or a warmth generated by love. The air seems to be filled with the love of God. It is as though perfume has been sprayed into the air.

The life and sacrifice of Christ becomes a fragrant offering to God in behalf of all and to the benefit of believers. Let Christ be a sweet fragrance in which you live your life and may your actions be pleasing to God.

Glades Central trio set for Junior Olympics

BY GENE ANTONIO

BELLE GLADE —Three Glades Central High School track standouts are on their way to the Junior Olympics.

Evette Lyman, Rechina Johnson and Gladys Milton have qualified for the Seattle, Washington, competition scheduled for later this month.

The three returned Tuesday from Hempstead, New York, where each earned a healthy share of medals in track events.

Lyman won the heptathlon event and came in fourth in the long jump. She came in fifth place in the 100 meters.

Lyman also was named Outstanding Female Athlete in the 17-and-18-year-old category.

Rechina Johnson placed fourth in the heptathlon and second in the 100 meter hurdles.

Gladys Milton came in second in the heptathlon in the 15-and-16-year-old group. She also placed second in the 4-by-4 relay.

The three athletes were in Hempstead from July 2 to July 9. Their coach, Jay Seider, was there for part of the time.

Funds for the trip came in part through the Palm Beach Community Foundation.

The competition, which draws athletes from throughout the country, is sponsored through National TAC Youth Athletics Track and Field.

By their showing in New York the three Glades Central athletes qualify for the Junior Olympics July 23 through 27.

The New York triumphs are only the latest in a string of victories. Earlier in the season the three athletes received state championship titles.

Also, the city of Belle Glade recognized its athletes at a recent City Commission meeting.

A resolution recognizing "the extraordinary dedication, effort and perseverance" of the team members was presented to the school.

Honored were team members Gladys Milton, Evette Lyman, Yolanda Rhodes, Garcia Tucker, Leontine Mann, Nancy Gray, Chequita Cato, Rechina Johnson, Antoinette Ulett, Ernestine Crawford and Charlotte Lindsey.

York. Their victories have assured them a place in the Junior Olympics to be held later this month in Seattle, Washington. With them is Coach Jay Seider.

Fishing picks up on Lake

Better news for Lake Okeechobee this week! The level of the lake seems to be holding and has even risen a little. However, this doesn't make the lake any less dangerous if you aren't familiar with her. A good idea to make sure you're safe is to take a guide with you or at least someone that knows the lake real well.

With the moon in the last quarter phase, fishing hasn't been at its best this week. But, with a new moon on the 17th, things should improve greatly.

Over the weekend, Joe Scott, Bob Davis and Billy Rawls got themselves a few shellcrackers. One hundred and forty-two, to be exact.

Eddie Campbell and Eddie Crosby tried their luck Sunday and came in with about 50 shellcrackers they found on the West side of Ritta Island.

I'm proud to say that I'm back on the water again. The knees still bothers me some, but is getting better. My guide trip Tuesdays details myself.

More recipes are needed for my cookbook folks. I've got a lot, but the more I have the better cookbook we'll have. Remember I want recipes on how to cook anything that comes out of the lake and everything that goes with the meal.

Until next week safe boating and good luck fishing.

BELLE GLADE —The Summer Program, now in its third week, is designed to get children familiar with the library and the services it offers.

Ann Lovell, in charge of the first three weeks of the program, says this summer's program focuses on the state of Florida. This summer's theme is "Footloose in Florida."

Each program consists of several types of activities, such as stories, finger plays, flannel board stories, movies and filmstrips, and arts and crafts.

Kids learn about sports activities in Florida, Disney World and the history of the state. They also learn about animals native to Florida, such as alligators, frogs and snakes.

During a recent program children learned about pirates in the early history of Florida. They now know that Captiva Island got its name from the days when pirates held prisoners captive there.

They also learned that other islands now tourist attractions, such as Sanibel, were once the haunts of pirates.

Lovell finds the kids like the arts and crafts portions of the programs the best. An average of 10 children show up for the programs.

Ages three, four and five meet Tuesdays at 11 a.m. and Wednesdays at 1 p.m. Children aged six, seven and eight meet Wednesdays at 11 a.m.

and Thursdays at 1 p.m.

Children aged nine and ten meet Thursday at 1 p.m. and Tuesday at 2 p.m.

The programs last about an hour.

Lila Blinco will be in charge of the second three weeks of the program.

At the end of the second week, a party will be held for the children who attended.

The library asks that parents choose only one of the times listed. Portions of the morning programs are repeated in the afternoon and children lose interest.

For further information call the library at 996-3453.

Haitians find 'stitch in time'

BY GENE ANTONIO

BELLE GLADE—Words written in Creole on the blackboard of a 4th Street workshop and classroom call for cooperation and striving to reach a goal.

The words carry special meaning to the 11 Haitian students who each day work at learning the skill of tailoring while developing a sense of pride and accomplishment.

Students work from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays learning to operate sewing machines and other tasks related to sewing and tailoring.

For many it's their first experience with non-farm work. They also gain good work habits and come to realize the importance of being part of a group and helping each other.

The work study program got underway June 10 with funds coming from the Migration and Refugee Services of the U.S. Catholic Conference.

According to Joanne Schwandes, Consultant and Project Demonstrator, the program has proved successful from the first day.

The success comes in the form of enthusiasm from the Haitian students and "the sense of pride and worth" the work instills in them.

But there's more pride at stake at the Southwest 4th Street workshop. Students keep busy filling their first work order. A South Florida company wants 25 money-pocket aprons.

If the aprons meet the buyer's standards he promises to order 125 more.

The students are fortunate to have an experienced and skilled tailor as their teacher.

Derozin Jean "Mr. Jean" studied tailoring for five years in Haiti. The licensed tailor guides students through each aspect of tailoring, from hand sewing to machine maintenance.

Jean also acts as translator. With his working knowledge of four languages he breaks through communication barriers.

Many of the Haitians have limited ability in English. Jean has no problem translating since he speaks English, French, Spanish and Creole.

The tailor has good things to say about his students. He is proud to their many accomplishments in so short weeks.

Though the lessons center on sewing, the Haitians spend their days doing much more than learning a skill.

As Schwandes points out, "Coming to work here gives them a united group feeling." The day-to-day experience builds pride and does much to instill the work ethic in the men and women.

Most Haitians in this country have only farm work experience. They aren't used to keeping schedules and working in close quarters indoors.

At the end of year field work is limited. Most of the Belle Glade students would sit idle if not for the program.

One student has seven children; she is physically unable to work in the fields. Students receive a nominal fee for the work they perform.

The program is not geared toward transforming all the students into professional tailors and seamstresses. Students, however, should have the skills required to work in a workshop type of environment.

Schwandes comments that students provide a service to the community while developing work skills. If they go on to work as professionals that's an added bonus.

The program is funded through August 10. Schwandes hopes it will be refunded. She's confident more orders will come in after the aprons are sold.

Presently space is limited and students are anxious to have an industrial sewing machine to work with.

Until then the 11 students gather each morning and begin work at learning a new skill and gaining a sense of pride and feeling of accomplishment.

Admission charge is a can of vegetables for the hobos stew.

Members and invited guests are asked to bring a dish to share.

Live entertainment will be provided.

Look what popped up in the middle of the road

It was somehow appropriate that I should be pondering luck, fate and the demise of the United States Football League while watching Birmingham lose to Baltimore in semifinal playoff game Sunday.

The fact I was watching the Stars cruise to a 28-14 win (out of total boredom I assure you) was not that unusual. The fact I was watching from a Tallahassee motel room was most unusual.

"You have to have some luck in football too," remarked ABC commentator Lynn Swann.

I had plenty of time to muse over that wisdom. Luck and fate, which we usually call bad luck, had conspired to land me in front of the vast wasteland that is television in the first place.

I had driven 10 hours to spend a rainsoaked two days in the resort town of Destin, FL and was now in the process of making the long, tedious return to Clewiston and the Glades.

I nervously eyed my fuel gauge as it fluttered toward E. With Aamaco card tightly in hand, fate steered me to the exit in Tallahassee. Ten minutes and two miles of searching later, I got my gas. But as I pulled back to the middle of three lanes of traffic, I noticed a piece of metal on the road. I had no escape and ran over top of it as it kicked the under carriage.

I immediately smelled gas. At the stop light, people told me gas was coming from the tank. Sure enough, in my review mirror, I spotted a river of petrol flowing from the back. Meanwhile, my gauge plunged back to E. I had a two and a half in gash in my tank.

As most of you know, fate decrees that it's easier to get a doctor to make a housecall than to get a mechanic on Sunday. The auto club got me towed, but of course a luck would have it, nothing could be done till Monday. That's why I was watching the Stallions and the Stars.

The Stars were playing Sunday also to Stallions QB Cliff Stoudt. His first pass of the day was intercepted and returned for a score. Things went down hill from there.

I've watched the gridiron endeavors of Mr. Stoudt ever since his clip board caddy days as personal lackey to the Pittsburgh Steelers great star Terry Bradshaw. Stoudt became a trivia answer after he became the first player to get his five years in for the NFL pension without setting foot on the astroturf for one game.

HITS & MISSES

This game followed a pattern all too familiar. Stoudt didn't have a bad day statistically. He was 29 of 50 for 327 yards and one TD against one interception. But the missed opportunities, when he couldn't get the team into the endzone from in close, cost the Stallions dearly.

He faced a fierce rush all afternoon, granted, and often threw off balance. But it was a question of leadership. Stoudt always looked panicked, even when he had time to throw. He would glance hesitantly from receiver to receiver, not making up his mind. Both Stallion scores came after Baltimore was up 28-2.

The game for Birmingham was analogous to the USFL as a whole. Their backs are against the wall. Their enemies can't bring them up their wall. Whether to play in the spring or fall. How much to pay players. What city to play in. None can agree. It's a question of leadership.

In the heat of the moment, they've decided to make the suicide switch to fall and go head to head with the big boys. The panic is in their eyes as they search vainly for fresh money backers or an open network contract.

The end result will come as surely as Birmingham's demise, if not as swiftly.

The Useless Football League has made greater strides than the late, great, World Football League. In the end though, it will be the same. People just have too much football and there is too much to do in the spring. It just won't go.

It might have at one time, if original plans of salary caps and the like had been followed. But greed overruled common sense, and the newest Ship of Fools is awash in a sea of red ink.

I prepare to sound the death knell. The end will come with a whimper, not a bang. Merely a short press release from the league's office and that's it.

It will pass with the kind of notice reserved for the death of a distant relative. There is concern at first, but it's just mild. In a few weeks, all will be forgotten and life will move on.

The USFL was fated for less than greatness. And as I found out once again in Tallahassee, you might dodge fate for a while, but it will catch you just as surely. You just don't know what will pop up in the middle of the road.
